'Cool Off' After Victory
Vengeance No Peace-Maker

Sumner Welles, Undersecretary of State, said something wise at Baltimore yesterday. He advocated a "cooling-off" period after the Axis is beaten and before final peace terms are made.

China Says Japs Eventually Will Invade Siberia

Chungking—(AP)—Informed Chungking authorities said today they believed the Japanese may attack Russian Siberia before the summer is over but at the moment Japan was concentrating on reinforcing air strength.

These sources said there was no confirmation of rumors that the Japanese had shifted many planes from the southeast Asia to Manchukuo for a Siberian attack.

The Chinese acknowledged the Japanese invasion armies now had seized all but 50 miles of the 450 mile railway in the heart of China.

This offensive is an important part of the Japanese campaign to tighten a cordon around still free regions of Southern China and thereby strangle the wartime capital of Chungking.

Chinese army intelligence indicated that the Japanese had massed 200 planes in Burma—perhaps for an attack on India or southwest China—and had increased by 300 their forces in occupied China.

They All Are Connected

New York—A radio, a nag, and the Brooklyn Dodgers. . . What influence did these play on the recent Kentucky Derby? Considerable, as I understand it.

Mrs. Payne Whitney, a hunch player and an admirer of good horse flesh, reads very little. Her eyes forbid this. Naturally she leans heavily on the radio for entertainment. One afternoon she was turning over a list of names in her mind. She had to select a name for a new colt. He was some colt, so she seemed to be. She couldn't make up her mind. After awhile, she turned on the radio, and she heard that the Brooklyn Dodgers had just won that day's game by a shutout.

"I told you Mrs. Whitney was a hunch player. She named the horse Shut Out. But there are other horses in the Whitney stables. Good horses, too. Devil Diver, for instance. When it came time to list her entries for the Derby, Mrs. Whitney talked it over with her trainer.

"I think it ought to be Devil Diver," she said.

"Maybe you're right," she said. She turned on the radio. The Dodgers had just won another game. By a shutout, Red Barber said.

"No," said Mrs. Whitney, playing that hunch, "it's got to be Shut Out."

You know, of course, that Shut Out won.

I was talking about the war to a grinning Irishman, Henry L. Cook, by name, but Cookie is what he is known to around New York. Henry L. Cook is managing director of the Dixie hotel.

He said: "It isn't so tough, getting in, if you try hard enough." Then he pulled up his right trouser leg until it was above his knee. Cook's leg was encased in a metal shield.

"Well," he said, "I got a big leg. I got hurt there when I was a kid. It was like this when the first World War broke out. The skin wouldn't show the shin bone. I wear this shield to keep from getting cracked there. I tried to enlist, but they wouldn't have me. I went back again, and they wouldn't have me. I guess I went to a dozen places. One day I tried to enlist again.

"I stripped and walked into a room where there were about 20 men, all stripped, all enlisting. When they passed on to the next room, I went too. A doctor said: 'You can't get in the Army like this.' I said, 'The heck I can't, they passed me back there, didn't they?' This Army doctor shrugged, and I was in. Then we went to France, and the first thing I knew I was in a hospital. The Colonel raged when he saw my leg. 'Who let you in this Army!' he screamed. Nevertheless, I was in, and there I

Pacific Coast Threat Reduced by Jap Losses

Washington—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson said Thursday that losses inflicted on the Japanese in the Pacific had temporarily but substantially reduced the threat of an attack on the Pacific coast which he has repeatedly said might be expected.

War and Navy department information is that the Japanese thus far had made only a very small landing on the Aleutians but stressed that fog and unfavorable weather obscured development in the North Pacific.

Information still is incomplete, he also told a press conference "on earlier air and sea engagements off Midway, but, after three days fighting, the enemy fleet was scattered all over the Pacific ocean, and hustling away as fast as it could without air protection."

"In the Aleutians," he continued, "American and Japanese forces thus far had only fleeting glimpses of each other through the eyes of their airplanes."

He promised that the government would make available every bit of "information we can on developments of all areas."

Dame Rumor in U. S. Goes Wild

By JACK STINNETT

Washington—In spite of all the common sense with which every American is supposed to be born, that Nazi precursor of hysteria, Dame Rumor, has been riding wild in the United States—and still is.

No government agency has to sweat over the wanderings of that old crone through the maze of exaggeration like the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Sooner or later, every rumor sits into the FBI files. The FBI considers it from two viewpoints. There might be an element of truth in it; or, it might be an entirely planted story, designed and circulated to create confusion, uncertainty, hysteria, or distrust of responsible governmental agencies.

In either event, the rumor has to be traced to its source and in a file at the FBI, an analysis of the sources reached is rapidly growing into one of the most amazing statistical studies on "RUMOR" that ever has been assembled.

In a mid-western community, a farm hand who went about in his spare time snapping pictures of anything that caught his fancy became, through rumor, an Axis agent who was mapping strategic roads, bridges and grain concentrations. The poor fellow turned out to be just another camera fan who wouldn't have known an Axis agent if one had bitten him on the ankle.

In another locality, the death of a canary gave rise to the widely spread rumor (and some hysteria in this instance) that the city's water supply had been poisoned. The FBI called a veterinarian in on that one and found the canary's feeding had been neglected for so many days that it died from overeating when it was finally given food and water.

A report that ground glass had been found in sponges for bandages being prepared for the armed forces sent the agents scurrying—especially since the report carried detailed information on how the

Axis Have New Rocket Bomb

London—(AP)—Axis planes participating in the great air-sea battle of the Mediterranean were reported today to have employed a new-type rocket bomb characterized by authorities as most important innovation since the introduction of the magnetic mine.

Some said that because of the terrific penetrating power and the high potential accuracy the new weapon might result in the development of a technique that would supersede dive bombing.

British Forced Back in Area Around Tobruk

Cairo—(AP)—The British fell back to fortified positions near the Egyptian frontier Thursday leaving the famous fortress of Tobruk all but surrounded by Rommel's German and Italian divisions.

Only a coast road remained open to link Tobruk with the Egyptian border, 80 miles eastward.

Apparently General Ritchie's armies split into two forces—one retreating to main defenses of Tobruk against imminent onslaught or a siege such as that which it endured for nearly 8 months in 1941.

British forces still were on the edge of Tobruk's south and south-west defenses. Thus the situation now is almost the same as that during the long siege of 1941.

Allied airmen supporting ground forces were declared to have broken all records for bombing and strafing as the enemy moved eastward and the British pulled out of El Adem and Sidi Rezegh.

The desert trails were littered with vehicles wrecked or burned by the Allied pilots.

The British troops set up new lines between Tobruk and the Egyptian frontier British observers said.

(The Italian high command said lateral reconnaissance showed the British had started a general withdrawal.)

In the absence of direct word concerning Acroma, 20 miles west of Tobruk, British quarters believed it probable that the British forces had retreated from there.

The British acknowledged that their tank strength had been reduced in combat to below that of the enemy.

Chances to retrieve the situation rests on the ability of the garrison at Tobruk to withstand Rommel's attack until reinforcements arrive from Egypt to mount a counter-offensive.

A heavy Axis assault on Tobruk was expected by commentators who say actual invasion of Egypt to reach the Suez is impossible without possession of Tobruk.

British Army Split Nazis Say

Berlin—(AP)—The German command reported Thursday that the British army in Libya had been split in two parts.

One part has fallen back on Tobruk while strong German and Italian tank formations are pursuing other forces swimming in the direction of Bardia, the command reported.

Several forts in the southern perimeter of Tobruk's defenses have been captured, it continued.

An earlier announcement said Axis forces had occupied a British base south of El Adem, 18 miles below Tobruk and captured 500 prisoners.

Bridges Brings Up Arguments

Washington—Any time you want in Washington these days—and even if you don't—you can get a confused argument about the deputation of Harry Renton Bridges, the west coast longshoremen's union and CIO leader.

The argument is confused because it always ends up in two questions: (1) Why hasn't the Communist Party protested? (2) Why did U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle do it, especially in view of the fact that President Roosevelt had just commuted the 4-year sentence of Earl Browder, head of the Communist party in the United States, to 14 months, thereby releasing him from prison?

The answer to the first is that when the Communist Party chiefs, in the midst of celebrations over the release of Browder, had recovered from this consternation (a high party official was heard to shout when the news arrived at one headquarters: "My Lord, what do we do now?") they concluded that the party couldn't possibly protest publicly the Bridges department order.

Why? Because that would be a public admission that Biddle's major premise as applied to this specific individual was right—that Bridges is or was a member of the Communist party.

But even though they still are enjoying the release of Browder, don't think that this slap at the party is going unnoticed, if not by the party, at least by party sympathizers. There'll be a flood of letters to congressmen and other government officials protesting the order.

A trickle has already started and if some of these are any indication, the tub-thumping is going to be to the tune that Biddle is just a legal punk and that by ordering Bridges kicked back to his native Australia, he is sabotaging the United Nations war effort.

How can war workers give their all, they say, when one of their most important labor leaders has been booted out of the country by one of the highest officials of the United States?

Some of these first letters come from persons known to be members of what the Department of Justice considers Communist party front organizations, not affiliated but sympathetic, and these may be considered the ones who will carry the hod in the verbal fight to keep

Positions of Allies Critical on Both Fronts

Moscow—(AP)—With point blank artillery fire and infantrymen attacking against tank-led waves of attackers the Red army and Navy defenses have beaten back every German attempt to smash through shell - scared fortifications that guard Sevastopol and its cliff-lined roadstead, Pravda reported today in dispatches from the front.

The Communist party newspaper said that since yesterday steadily reinforced German troops had battered unceasingly at the grimly held Crimean base from the north and south, disregarding 1500 dead in a single action.

By the Associated Press

Grave new threats to the British armies in North Africa and the Russian defenders of Sevastopol were reported Thursday as the German high command asserted that Nazi troops had driven into Sevastopol's immediate defense ring and had split the British-Libyan armies into two parts.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters said the German siege armies were storming Sevastopol, last big Soviet stronghold in the Crimea, and had captured Port Gorky and driven within two miles of the harbor entrance.

Claim Modern Fort Taken

The command described Fort Gorky as the most modern and strongest bastion of the whole fortress.

Besides capturing Fort Gorky in the main fortifications north of the city Axis forces also drove back stubborn Red army troops to the south, Hitler's high command said.

The Nazi claims of having knifed into Sevastopol's ring of fortifications were unconfirmed elsewhere. The Russians declaring they had beaten off a series of savage new attacks.

Soviet front lines dispatches said hundreds of German dead and burned out tanks littered the slopes before Sevastopol.

U. S. Bombers Aid Sevastopol

Stockholm dispatches said U. S. built Liberator bombers were aiding the Sevastopol defenders.

On the Kharkov front Soviet dispatches said new attacks in Field Marshall Fedor Von Bock's week-old offensive were repulsed.

On the air war front RAF bombers pounded German U-boat nest of St. Nazaire on Nazi-occupied French coast and attacked air fields and railways in Northern France and Belgium.

No German night raiders appeared over Britain.

Apparently beginning to feel the sting of American counter measures the German high command for the first time noted strong American defense in claiming that the Nazi U-boats had sunk 12 more ships in the Caribbean sea and 7 in the Atlantic.

Haynes Is Air Chief in China

Chungking—(AP)—Col. Caleb V. Haynes has been appointed chief of American bomber command in China.

Just where and when the new American forces will go into action was a military secret.

(It was not disclosed what forces would comprise the American bomber command in China. There were reports that U. S. air units and personnel arrived there but these were without confirmation.)

Already operating in China are the Flying Tigers—American Volunteer group with the Chinese airforce—but these were scheduled to be taken back into the army airforce July 4.

Col. Haynes recently led personally the aerial evacuation of Burma. While stationed in India as commander of the Assam-Burma-China Ferrying command he repeatedly risked his life to fly gasoline to the AVG in Burma and bring out refugees and military personnel.

Ballots for Service Men

Little Rock—(AP)—Responding to an inquiry from Governor Adkins Attorney General Jack Holt ruled Thursday that ballots for the July preferential primary "should" be printed now and mailed to Arkansans in armed services.

Little Rock—(AP)—Calling attention to an emergency which needs immediate attention and sympathetic attitude Governor Adkins asked Attorney General Jack Holt for an opinion today on the legality of printing absentee ballots now.

Adkins said that the ballots must be printed immediately if the thousands of Arkansas soldiers stationed in distant camps are to vote in the July 28 primary.

"It occurs to me the absentee ballots could be printed now," Adkins wrote.

Harvey Combs, Democratic Central committee secretary, recently announced he had certified tickets to county clerks to make early ballots distribution possible.

Schools Adopt the Navy Physical Program

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEA Service Sports Editor

New York—War is rapidly making this nation tougher than a keg of nails, and that's the way we want it, brother.

Navy's physical hardening system, having remarkable success in quickly developing flyers and sailors for combat, is spreading throughout colleges and high schools. Collegiate directors are so enthusiastic about the conditioning exercises that they are making recommendations for similar programs to high schools.

Particular emphasis is placed upon swimming because early Japanese successes were aided by aquatic stars. Recruits at Great Lakes, for example, now undergo examinations in four swimming styles—free, breast, side and backstroke. Several of the country's finest swimming coaches are instructors there.

Mass physical hardening exercises, combative sports, circle games, wall scaling and tug o' war are included in the program.

Such a program, designed to condition students for war service, henceforth will be compulsory at Princeton. Similar systems have been installed at Michigan, Northwestern, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan State and Marquette.

The program is already paying schools dividends. Dick France, for instance, jumped from an Indiana physical fitness class to the varsity track squad and won a major letter.

First of the headline athletes rushed into the Navy as physical instructors are now being taught gunnery and fire control preparatory to manning battle stations.

The American athlete will go where he can do the most damage to the other side.

That's the way he has always played the game.

Alsab, it seems, had an excuse in the Belmont Stakes other than the blind splint in his foreleg from which Sarge Swenke says he was suffering when he finished second to Shut Out.

Basil James explains that Wayne Wright, aboard Top Milk, forced him to take Alsab wide going into the backstretch.

This not only cost Alsab the three lengths by which he was beaten, but to get out of the jam and past Top Milk, James had to move the bargain basement colt before he wanted to—seven-and-a-half furlongs from home.

Wright rode Shut Out in the Derby and Preakness, in which Eddie Arcaro, the Greentree rider, was up on Devil Driver.

Jockeys assert Wayne Wright saved stakes with Eddie Arcaro in the Belmont.

Speaking of Alsab, the bony growth on the side of the splint bone finally gave him the rest almost everybody outside of Albert Sabath and Trainer Swenke claimed he needed.

Add sights you never expected to see: Elden Aufer, or any other pitcher, purposely passing Tommy Henrich, or any other hitter, to get at Joe DiMaggio.

But it happened and proved 'clever' strategy, for DiMaggio, with the bases bulging, popped an easy foul.

In this one game with the Browns, Joe DiMaggio failed with a total of seven on the sacks.

It was a striking example of just how far the mighty of such a short time before can fall.

Harrison in Hollywood

By PAUL HARRISON

Hollywood—Movieland tenors are laying at incandescent moons these days, and native maidens in sarongs—mysteriously accompanied by ghostly, 45-piece orchestras—are answering them across limpid jungle pools. Fred Astaire is practicing dancing in a suit of armor; Sonja Henie is welcoming Americans in an Icelandic night club; Mary Martin is warbling on a tropic island. Guitars are strumming in the sagebrush; Hollywood soldiers of three wars are marching and singing; and chorus girls are busy again.

Everybody's happy except the bosses who are worried about the War Production Board's impending squeeze on movie production costs.

"We've had a hard time," reminisced a veteran director whom I'd better not name. "A lot of money has been spent trying to work out some form of presentation suitable to the limitations of the screen."

Bridges here. As for the answer to that No. (2), it is simple. Aside from the evidence as Biddle saw it (he saw it differently from his own Board of Immigration Appeals, and reversed it by this order) what else could he do, without assuming the responsibility for the long-battled Bridges from here on out?

By this order and the announced decision of Bridges' attorney to fight the order, the case goes to the federal court and maybe even to the United States supreme court. It isn't that Biddle has passed the buck; it is just that only by ordering Bridges deported, could this country and Bridges get a final decision on this controversy which has been kicking around on the American scene for too many years now.

Such scenes were interspersed with close-ups of stars singing like belated and their mouths looking like illustrations accompanying the lectures at a dental clinic.

When this dubious art-form had driven swarms of patrons from the theaters, producers decided plots must be strengthened. So came the backstage story era, which worked fine until customers began to protest that the story was always the same. Next came some half-hearted attempts at adaption of Broadway's intimate revues. It was easier to see and appreciate what the individual performers were doing, but the studios were afraid to put top stars into movies lacking lavish "production values," so those pleasant musicals became casual, class B vehicles for the introduction of newcomers.

Sins of Cinderella

Semi-Musicals, which are comedies with incidental songs and dances tossed in, have succeeded most consistently. "These will go on forever," said my cynical informant, "because the possibilities are unlimited. Any day, now, I expect to see a murderess sit on the body of her slain lover and go into a lament in a minor key.

"With the new boom in movies, and with the war spending spree, Hollywood can get by with anything. Look at the corny, quickie musicals which are making so much dough for Universal. Good old Cinderella is rampant again, and when somebody revived a reverse twist on the Cinderella theme, three studios grabbed it. Conja Henie's 'Iceland,' the new Rita Hayworth-Fred Astaire super-dooper, and 'Seven Sisters' at Metro are all foreign stories based on the schemes of younger sisters to marry off the elder sister so they can get married."

The rumor was given credence when another story spread that a number of gas masks produced by this firm had been condemned. Some gas masks had been condemned—by the company inspectors—because of pincushion eye-pieces resulting from a defective die. Further investigation showed that it would have been virtually impossible for the doctor's patient to have punctured gas masks at any point with the size needle she stuck in her finger. The gas mask materials were too thick and tough.

Miss Holloway Continues To Be Honored at Parties
Another in a series of pre-nuptial parties given for Miss Mary Cornelia Holloway and her fiancé, Mitchell Williams, was the lovely breakfast given by Mrs. Martin Pool and Mrs. Colyer Cox at the Barlow Wednesday morning.

A charming arrangement of white pottery figurines filled with double shasta daisies made the attractive centerpiece. Outlining the mirror plaque on which the arrangement was placed was a garland of daisies interspersed with maidenhair fern.

The bridal outfit was carried out in the place cards embossed with sprays of shasta daisies encircled with a wedding ring. The honored couple received a beautiful gift of crystal.

Covers were laid for Miss Holloway, Mr. Williams, Mrs. A. K. Holloway, Mrs. Jett Williams, Mrs. Henry Somerville, Miss Carolyn Trimble, Miss Betty Trimble of El Dorado, Alva Williams, Jr. of Stamps, Mrs. B. C. Hyatt, Miss Mary Alice Weper of Nashville, Cril Stuart, Jr., Arthur Barr, and the hostesses.

Miss Betty Trimble of El Dorado complimented Miss Holloway at luncheon Wednesday at 1:30 at the Barlow.

The bridal theme was observed in the charming place cards marking the covers of the 10 friends attending.

A large crystal bowl of red roses ornamented the center of the table. It was placed on a mirror plaque. Miss Holloway's place was marked with a beautiful corsage of tall stems roses and a handsome gift from the hostess.

Enjoying the lovely occasion with the honoree and hostess were Miss Carolyn Trimble, Miss Marilyn McRae, Miss Nancy Hill, Miss Betty Hendrixson of Texarkana, Miss Marjory Dildy, Mrs. Tom Purvis, Miss Daisy Dorothy Heard, and Miss Mary Alice Weper of Nashville.

New Yarn Shipment To Be Distributed Friday
Mrs. Bernard O'Dwyer, county knitting chairman, announced Thursday morning that the yarn for 164 knitted garments to be returned to headquarters August 16 has arrived and will be available at the production rooms Friday.

Three knitting instructors will be at the rooms to assist the chairman in helping knitters with their problems.

Todd-Thompson
Miss Patricia Thompson, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. O. A. Thompson of Fayetteville, was married to Claude Todd of Tulsa, Okla., at 10 o'clock Friday morning, June 12, at the Central Methodist church of Fayetteville. The Rev. Conner Morehead of Little Rock, former pastor of the church, officiated. The bride wore a suit of pale blue silk with white accessories and she carried a bouquet of garden flowers. Miss Frances Carl Lee of England, maid of honor wore a pink dress and she also carried garden flowers. Miss Dorothy Ann Beedoe of Tulsa wore a pale pink dress and she lighted the candles before the ceremony. Miss Peggy St. John of Rogers and Miss Mary Katherine Cherry of Tulsa were in charge of the guest book. Cecil Todd of Kingfisher, Okla., served his brother as best man. Mrs. Warner St. John of Rogers, aunt of the bride, played the wedding march, "I Love You Truly" and "To a Wild Rose" and she accompanied Mrs. Lawrence Harris who sang "At Dawning" and "Just For You" and at the close of the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer." After a reception held for the wedding party and members of the two families, Mr. and Mrs. Todd left for Colorado Springs for a two weeks wedding trip. Later they will live in Tulsa. The bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Thompson of Springdale. —Arkansas Gazette

HUNTER UNDER SUSPICION

CHAPTER VIII

WHEN Hunter Dent came to himself he was lying on a cot. The rough wool blanket was not woven in any of the local perfume or cosmetic plants. The walls were black and narrow. There was a steady pour of rain outside. It came to Hunter slowly that he was in jail. He sat up. He got to unsteady legs and crossed the floor. He was in a cell, all right. He was in jail. He remembered more and more, how he had opened the safe to make sure about the money; how he had been set on by rascals lurking in his office. It must have been Neal Frazier, and the rest of them, after knocking him out, had brought him to town and lodged him here.

A brown Negro, evidently the night clerk of this public hostelry, came at his wild howls. "I is Shady," the colored man stated, not without deference. "You is Mr. Hunter Dent, isn't you?"

"Unlock this door and let me out of here!"

"I couldn't do dat, Mr. Dent. She'll Anderson he say if you comes to and is hurting to look after you, but alongside of dat I is to keep you locked up. Is you hurting nowhurs, Mr. Dent?"

No use venting his wrath on the jailor, who was merely doing his duty. "Nowhurs," he growled. He had breakfast, and Sheriff Anderson then took him to his office.

"Frazier, and the other boys, fetched you in late last night, Dent."

"Sweet of 'em," Dent grumbled. "What am I charged with?"

"Robbery, murder, resisting arrest, and a few things like that. What have you to say for yourself?"

"I decline to talk, Sheriff. I want a lawyer."

"Who is your lawyer?"

"Tracy Hannings. Will you call him for me?"

ANDERSON looked up the number and dialed it. "Hunter Dent is here with me, Hannings. This is Sheriff Anderson. He asks you to come over as quick as you can. Okay. Thanks." He hung up, turned back to Hunter. "You might as well come clean. We've gone over this whole business. You're mixed in that stick-up."

'Zip Your Lip' During the War

By NEA Service

Monterey, Cal. — "Shut up" is the order of these days for Monterey Peninsula folk. That's not rude talk—it's just wartime precaution against loose talk about military matters. If Monterey citizens hadn't already known how important it is to "Zip Your Lip," West Coast ship sinkings, the shelling of the coast by a Jap sub, and the Jap raid on Alaska would have done the trick.

But Monterey already knew, and was able to boast that, militarily speaking, it was the most close-mouthed spot in the nation.

Should you, a stranger, see a soldier at a bar some place on the Monterey Peninsula and say to him in a friendly way:

"Hi, Soldier. What's your outfit?"

(a) The soldier would say, "Sorry, that's military information."

(b) Other civilians in the place would eye you carefully and if you measured up all right would say, "We're cooperating with the Army here by keeping quiet on all military subjects. Please don't ask soldiers any questions."

(c) The bartender would point to a large poster over the bar that says, "Zip Your Lip."

"Everyone Was Talking . . ."

This penchant for secrecy didn't pop out by itself. Long after Dec. 7, Monterey folk went on talking about troop movements at nearby Ft. Ord and the new planes at the salinas air base.

Loose talk among civilians became a real problem.

New troops were arriving at Ft. Ord. Others were leaving. Carloads of equipment arrived on every long freight train. Gun emplacements went up along the less rugged sections of the Peninsula coast.

And everyone was talking. The soldiers on pass in two talked among themselves and civilians overheard them. Each new troop movement was common knowledge.

Few paid much attention to printed warnings that a slip of the lip might sink a ship. Some method had to be found to make every individual personally responsible for keeping himself—and his neighbor—quiet.

The method was found, and put over, by the Ft. Ord Public Relations staff, headed by Lieut. J. K. Connell. The lieutenant, a former newspaperman, actor, and promotion expert, believed in showmanship—and showmanship made the Monterey Peninsula shut up.

Advice at Bus Stations

Most of the information, of course came from soldiers, so they were the first to feel the impact of the "Zip Your Lip" campaign.

It started with a small box story on the front page of Panorama, the Fort newspaper. The head on messages from Ft. Ord and Monterey.

The suggested censorship worked like this: If a soldier included anything of a military nature in his telegram, the clerk asked him to delete that part in the interest of secrecy. If any had failed to delete, the message would have been transmitted as he wished, but his name would be turned over to the post intelligence officer.

So far no soldiers have refused to cooperate. This might be contrasted with one Saturday's business, previous to the campaign, in which the telegraph companies said 5000 messages saying "The Fort is on alert," were sent from here.

Fort Leavenworth, Kas. (AP)—Leut. Ted O'Sullivan and two other officers met a rookie on a street and the fellow saluted but raised three fingers of his left hand.

Parts for Farm Equipment to Become Scarce
Hempstead County Farmers are warned by members of the County USDA War Board, local leaders in the wartime farm production drive, that both repair parts and tires for farm cars and trucks will become increasingly scarce during coming months and that vigorous conservation efforts must be undertaken immediately.
The board urges that farmers give immediate thought to ways of cutting down on driving, such as "share-your-car" and "Share-your-truck" methods of neighborhood pooling.
Preference ratings with local tire rationing boards won't do any good when the tires are gone, nor will there be any more repair parts after automobile supply shelves have been cleaned out, declared Mr. Earl N. Martindale war board chairman.
"You should drive your car and your truck as carefully as though you weren't expecting a replacement tire or repair part for the duration," he said. "Every farm-

Mr. Martindale said that the tire situation is far more serious than most people realize. He pointed out that Japan has captured the Far Eastern area which used to furnish 98 per cent of the U. S. rubber. The stock pile on hand is being used rapidly for military needs, and there will be no new

Need Carriers to Win War

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Military Writer

Washington — "What we need to win this war is a hundred and fifty aircraft carriers," exploded a naval officer back from the Far East.

But the battles of Midway and the Coral Sea have shown that the war in the Pacific is today largely a carrier war.

The Navy has put air-going sailors on the bridge, and their imaginations soar unfettered even up to drawing-board talk of a flying carrier, a dirigible, towing planes ship admirals would have snorted through the air.

That may actually come, someday. Meanwhile, January 1 will surely see the Navy nearer 150 carriers than seemed possible a few months ago. Congress will soon vote a big new program to free the sea gull's wings.

The Navy is quietly undergoing a revolution in tactical doctrine toward air-power which is projected over the high seas by carrier much farther than the biggest shell is projected by gunfire.

Carrier Replacing Battleship

Although it is now pretty generally considered that the Midway victory was due largely to land-based Army bombers, still it clinched the value of the naval bombing plane, as demonstrated in the Coral Sea. These air-sea battles of unprecedented nature are vital in naval history. Our fast carriers, with good warning devices, proved less vulnerable than expected to air bombing, certainly less than slow battleships. The first-hand facts, brought back by naval flying officers for the President, Admiral King and key Congressmen, are having an effect as explosive as an aerial torpedo.

The carrier is in many ways taking the place of the battleship as spearhead of the fleet. The Navy's vast shipbuilding program is being reshuffled to bring the new trumps uppermost.

Not "battle-wagons" but "covered wagons" get the center of the road, if only to catch up with Japan whose carriers are more varied than ours and were twice as numerous before Midway. If they lost three sunk, or even one sunk and two damaged, this was a highly important result for the tactics of the American task force—to knock out their carriers. For all their carrier casualties save one were big carriers, and even though one of ours was damaged, the balance is tilted our way.

Officially, we have with the Fleet seven big 78-120 plane carriers, plus the first few of an ultimate thirty-odd cargo ships now being converted to 15-30 plane carriers. The Navy confesses nearly a score more big ones in the works.

Big carriers are needed for striking forces to bomb Japanese invasion fleets threatening Australia or other bases, and later Japanese battleships and cities.

Smaller carriers are needed for conveying ships bearing the cargoes now piling up especially in Caribbean ports. Mean soft mass producing small carriers are now being studied.

We are learning how better to protect carriers, but they still need to be screened by other ships, so we are building more cruisers and destroyers fast and nimble enough to dodge bombs and torpedoes.

Battleships Are Still Necessary

Old sailors are astounded at how naval construction and planning are swerving toward air-power. Keels that were laid for some of the 15 battleships now building, will cut the water as keels of carriers. But not all.

We must have surface warships so long as there are surface merchant ships to protect or sink; we must have surface battleships so long as the enemy has them. And today Japan has built or building, fourteen, including some new giants.

The American battleship now looming through the spindrift of the near future will be powerful but very fast, carrying many anti-aircraft guns and some long-range rifles, and not three planes, but perhaps thirty. It really will be a carrier-battleship.

To evolve the new air-sea power means change unequalled since not only the Dreadnought and the Monitor, but even the momentous naval revolution caused by the introduction of steam. As in their day, change has been resisted by a few swivel-chair brass-hats. They have lost.

Navy Starts "Air-Conditioning" There will be more changes such as establishment of new big training center for an increasing influx of air cadets.

For the moment, this so-called "air conditioning" of the Navy catches it at something of a disadvantage, which was lessened, but by no means canceled by the Japanese losses at Midway. It has too few carriers, especially too few smaller ones; too few of some types of planes, too many of others; far too many battleships that, because of age, slowness or other defects, are vulnerable to air attack.

But this country has the youth, the brains and the industry to adjust quickly. We can do it—yet we must hurry, for never in our history has time been so precious.

Arkansans Join Fight Against Labor Abuses

Little Rock — Arkansas farmers have joined those from other states in appealing to congress to outlaw abuses which on agriculture as an industry, according to the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation, which represents 33,000 rural families in this state.

The Farm Bureau has asked Arkansas congressmen to support the Hobbs Bill (H. R. 6872) which is designed to remove the exemptions of labor unions from provisions of the Anti-Racketeering Act and enable the Department of Justice to prosecute racketeering practices and extortion through acts of violence, threats, boycotts, or other forms of intimidation and coercion.

Introduction of the Hobbs Bill followed a decision by the United States Supreme Court in a test case originating in New York that it is within the constitutional rights of labor unions to refuse to load or unload farmer-owned or driven trucks at terminal markets unless the farmer employs the union or paid union employees to accompany his vehicle even though services of the latter might not be even required, much less desired.

This attitude by unions worked considerable hardship on farmers, especially those having cargoes of perishable commodities, which were allowed to spoil in the trucks because of failure to comply to union demands. The Teamsters' Union wage scale in New York is $9.42 per day.

Chief Justice Stone, who dissented from the majority opinion in the test case declared that there was "abundant evidence" that the payments (of union dues and initiation fees or wages to unnecessary union employees) were made by drivers or owners of trucks to purchase immunity (from unions) from violence of response and from no other reason.

The Hobbs Bill has been approved by the House Judiciary Committee and is now awaiting action in the House.

Good News for Married Men

By ELEANOR RAGSDALE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Washington — Good news to married non-coms in all armed services—Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard: marriage and fatherhood are about to pay off.

One effect of the so-called Family Allotments and Allowances bills, will be to grant semi-automatic graduated pay raises to every enlisted man—Grades 4, 5, 6 and 7—who has Class A dependents, regardless of his or their financial status. A Class A dependent, according to both house and senate bills, is "any person who is the wife, the child or the former wife divorced" (to whom alimony is being paid) of an enlisted man.

Rich and Poor Share Alike

Since the "dependency" of Class A is based on relationship rather than financial needs, Sergeant Smith, with penniless wife, Private Brown with a self-supporting wife and Corporal Van Plush, who clips enough coupons to keep the little woman in a Park Avenue pent-house, could all get equal allowances for families of the same size under the act, provided they set aside the necessary allotment out of their own base pay. The War and Navy Departments favor this blanket procedure because it's democratic and easy to operate—no long, costly investigations necessary. The Federal Security Agency policy makers add their approval on the grounds that it removes the "relief" stigma from payments which they consider to be a fighting family man's due.

A final feature of Class A payments is that they are "compulsory" in the sense that even if the man doesn't want to apply for them and shell out his allotment of $22 toward family support to start the government allowances rolling in, he must—if his bona fide wife or children demand it.

Class "B" Relatives Are Real Dependents

When it comes to providing allowances and allotments for Class B dependents, the picture changes in certain respects. In the first place Class B eligibles must be financially dependent on the enlisted man for a "substantial portion of their support," as well as close relatives i. e. parents, grandparents, grandchildren, brothers or sisters.

Secondly, any payments made to them are "voluntary" on the part of the soldier or sailor. That means that unless Yeoman Jack Tar gives the green light himself by applying for such aid to Grandpa or Mom, they can't get it. To provide for cases where the fighting man is overseas and can't be contacted to give the go-ahead, the Secretary of War or Navy may grant the request after investigation—until such time as a veto or okay can be got from the man himself.

To men with Class A or B dependents and up for classification or reclassification by their Selective Service Boards, the Allowances and Allotments bill is going to make a whole lot of difference, too. Title II of the measure amends the Selective Service Act in two very important ways. It states that local boards, when determining how dependent a man's family is, shall consider the amount of the extra payments his A and B dependents would be entitled to once he gets into the army before deciding that he should be deferred on financial grounds.

Man Can Still Claim Exemption—If

Formerly the Act read that boards should only consider his financial status at the time of classification. In the future, if the board figures the man's kids or parents can get along on the specified payment they'd receive, plus any other income they might have, the man would not be deferred for financial reasons.

If, however, special circumstances, such as invalidism or obligations make the cost of support higher than the estimated payments—the man still may be able to claim service exemption for support.

Furthermore this vital amendment recognizes specifically that certain types of family relationship may be considered grounds for deferment, regardless of the money question.

It authorizes the President to see that some grouping is worked out for class 3 Selective Service registrants—who comprise 65 per cent of all men classified—so that established families shall not be broken up just because financial dependency may have been removed.

Working Out Details Under New Plan Already Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Director of Selective Service, is busy working out the ticklish problem of what categories are to be set up and in what order men from these groups shall be called.

It's a safe bet that when the local boards finally get the new directives, they'll find that all single men with dependents must be called up before the married ones are touched—and the guy with a whole bunch of grade-schoolers to look after will be the last on the list.

Dairy Farmers Have Big Goal Ahead in 1942

Hempstead County dairy farmers have a large volume of milk to produce in 1942 to reach the quota set up under the government's wartime production program, Oliver L. Adams, county agent, declared Wednesday.

Reaching the production goal, however, he pointed out, is dependent upon quality as well as quantity production since government purchase channels are closed to poor-quality products.

Only clean milk will make cheese, evaporated milk, or dry milk that will meet the demands of lend-lease and military purchases, he said.

In this regard, Paul Carruth of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, points out that milk receives the majority of its foreign material from the cow and the milking barn. In order to produce clean milk a certain type of barn floor is necessary. The sanitary barn floor as shown will do much toward the production of clean milk. These types of floors are easily cleaned and thus prevent the entrance of foreign material into the milk. In addition, they will not absorb odors which cause off flavor in milk.

Concrete, according to the Extension dairyman, is accepted as the most practical, economical, and sanitary material for floors in milking barns. The construction is neither difficult nor expensive, and can be done by the average dairy farmer with ordinary labor and with sand and gravel that he may have on the farm. The entire dairy barn need not be floored but sufficient space for the milking should be concreted. "Unclean milk from one farm," Carruth warned, "can undo the careful work of all neighboring farms and can spoil all the good milk delivered by all the other patrons of a plant."

Reminding farmers that much of the cheese inspected in Arkansas for purchase by the Government has been turned down because too much foreign material has been allowed to enter the milk, the Extension Specialist declared: "It has always paid to produce clean milk."

It is the profitable thing to do now! It is the patriotic thing to do now!

Plan Now for Fall Garden

Constant planning is essential in the vegetable garden is to be kept in production throughout the growing season, says Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, county home demonstration agent.

This is particularly true, Miss Fletcher says, if the garden is to produce in the fall. Even though this has been an unusually wet season so far, the gardener may reasonably expect a dry summer to follow. This would result in a low moisture supply at the time of fall vegetable planting time. In past years it has often been too dry for seed to germinate in late July and August with a consequent failure to have the garden in production in the fall.

In order to help assure a fall garden, the good gardener will try to save some of the moisture that is now in the ground for his fall crop. This may be done, according to Earl J. Allen of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture, by selecting an area in the garden and keeping it clean cultivated through June and July, or until new plantings are made. By constant cultivation, the weeds and grasses which take moisture from the soil are destroyed. Cultivating will also create a dust or soil mulch which will prevent the ground from baking or cracking with a consequent moisture loss. As long as there is moisture in the ground, there is constant movement toward the surface and the drying action of wind and sun. Creation of a soil mulch on the surface of the ground interrupts this movement and slows down the rate of loss by evaporation.

In most years, enough moisture from the spring and summer rains

Barbershop but No Shaves

New York—(P)—There's a men's barber shop on 57th street between Eighth and Ninth where you can't get a shave . . . They only cut hair . . . They do it scientifically, that is, with respect to the contours of your head . . . They say no two heads are shaped alike . . . They say one type of haircut will make one man look like a million, but that the same cut will reduce somebody else to absurdity . . . They take this very seriously . . . The cost is 50 cents.

"Ain't had a chance to cool in many a bright night what with clambakes all the way from the Land O' Darkness to the sunny southland. Though a little beat for dross and saucers under the glims, Old Cab and all the cats are ready to send hep-cats and ickies both blowing their tops at the Strand. It would be just like home cooking if you and the Main Queen would lamp us when you get a chance and say hello."

This lucid, matter of fact little note is from Cab Calloway, and it is his way of saying that he and his Cotton Club boys open an engagement at the Strand theater on Broadway soon. Although "beat for dross," which means he's tired and has circles under the eyes because of continuous engagements all over the country, from Harlem ("Land O' Darkness") to the gulf, he and the hep-cats (boys in the band) are going to really GIVE, and they'd be pleased if you and the Main drop around to catch the show and say hello.

All this is Harlemese, or jive right out of the revised edition of Cab's Cat-O-logue, and up to date dictionary of Harlem slang. Some of the terms and definitions in this dictionary are singular, to say the least. . . . For instance, "beat" means tired, exhausted. . . . If a cat says "I am beat to my socks," he means "I'm lacking everything." . . . A "battle" is a very homely girl, a crone. . . . "Beat up the chops" means "come on, say something, be loquacious." . . . "Dry long so" means fate. . . . "That's life for you." . . . A "nickel note" is a $5 bill. . . . A "trilly" means somebody is going to leave, depart, take off. . . . "I'll dig you in a few ticks" means I'll meet you in a few minutes.

Here's something to remember about Frank Sinatra . . . He's Tommy Dorsey's star male vocalist. . . . He's from Hoboken, N. J. . . . His father is a fireman. . . . Frank wanted to become an engineer, and he went to Stevens Tech, but instead he became the singing sensation of the 1940 season. . . . Frank speaks Italian, loves spaghetti, once held a job ("for a few paragraphs") as a cub reporter, likes to swim and play ping pong. He dresses casually, mostly in sports clothes that run to blues and browns. . . . He's reasonably tall with blue eyes and lots of brown hair. . . .

B. B. Perdue Believed Lost on Corregidor

Oklahoma — Benton B. Perdue, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Perdue, Delight, was last heard from December 7, 1941, in a letter mailed at Corregidor. Government reports state that so far as is known he was with United States forces at Corregidor when they surrendered May 7.

Perdue, whose age is 28, enlisted the Army Feb. 6, 1941. He was transferred from Camp Robinson March 1 and to Ft. Mills Coast Artillery, on Corregidor, April 1, 1941. Letters were received regularly until December 7. Since then there has been no communication.

He is a graduate of Prescott High School, where he was an outstanding athlete, starring in football, basketball and baseball. He also attended Monticello A. & M. and St. Mary's University (Texas), playing quarterback on the football teams at both institutions.

may be saved by summer following to provide good conditions for seed germination in July and August. Cultivations should be made every week or 10 days or often enough to keep the ground clean and the upper two inches of soil loose and friable. Cultivation deeper than two inches will expose too much soil to the drying action of sun and winds, the Extension horticulturist says.

Capital Main Stream and Cross Currents

Washington — Just about as important as the immobilized French fleet, from the American point of view, are half a dozen six-engine French flying boats, recently completed by Air-France with Nazi approval, and now flying. These big transports, nearly twice the size of the original Boeing Pan-American clippers, were designed primarily as luxury airliners for trans-Atlantic passenger trade. Outbreak of the war stopped work on the ships, but word leaks out of France that they have been stripped of their fancy trim, baths and bars, and converted into French versions of the Mars-type long range naval air bomber, with suspicious bulges and blisters that might be bomb bay doors and gun turrets. The fact that materials for their conversion were allocated by the Nazis is significant. Four of the boats are supposed to be under supervision of Vichy and two are in occupied France. If the Nazis could get control of the fleet, here might be the

The amazing energy of Vice President Henry A. Wallace continues to astound many Washington people. He will deliver a speech in New York at night, hop a late sleeper for Washington, and at 8 o'clock the next morning, when other guests at the Wardman Park hotel are just wiping the sleep from their eyes and looking out the window to see what kind of a day it is, they will see Henry playing his morning set of tennis.

More Rubber

Another hope for solving the synthetic rubber problem, though still in the laboratory stage, is butylene glycol, about which you may be hearing more from time to time. The basis of all synthetic rubber is butadiene, the gas which can be made from petroleum or ethyl alcohol. The alcohol is made by adding a ferment to a sugar or starch solution, and distilling the resulting fermented mash. Using a different fermenting agent, instead of getting ethyl alcohol, butylene glycol is obtained. Advantage of butylene glycol is said to be that it yields more butadiene per bushel of grain than ethyl alcohol. The yeast, or fermenting agent which produces butylene glycol, was developed at the University of Iowa.

Ever since the Supreme Court decided that labor unions couldn't be prosecuted for violation of the anti-trust laws, the Department of Justice has had a lay low on its labor conspiracy cases, but it still has a few in which unions and union officials are involved. In the Dubuque, Ia., milk case, one union official was finally involved for conspiracy to fix prices paid producers for milk and prices to be charged for milk at retail. In the army hat case, at Philadelphia, union officials are involved with manufacturers charged with conspiracy to fix prices on bids for contracts to make army headgear. In a San Francisco building case, union men are involved with employers in a conspiracy to limit production.

So the only way a crooked labor leader can be got at today on anti-trust charges is for him to be involved with a crooked employer.

Chore Boy

Only 10 per cent of all the cases handled by the Federal Trade Commission involve charges of illegal price fixing, and only half of those would be affected by the pending bill which would grant the chairman of the War Production Board the right to certify wartime exemption from civil law under the FTC act. The work of the FTC in safeguarding free and fair competition in business will therefore continue almost without change during the war.

In addition to its regular chores, however, FTC has taken on a big load of war work for other government agencies, and practically two-thirds of its examining and legal staff has been assigned to special jobs for War Production Board, Office of Price Administration, Board of Economic Warfare and others. One job was to investigate the costs, prices and profits of 67 furniture making companies, to provide a basis for possible price regulation. Another was to study the bakery industry, to see what un-

Large Crop of Mature Onions

"Now's the time to take advantage of onion abundance," says Miss Mary Claude Fletcher, county home demonstration agent. "For on the market now is one of the largest crops of mature onions ever produced at this time of year. Topping off that crop are supplies of fresh green onions—from home gardens and commercial fields."

"Although onions are chiefly valued for their flavor—they are not at the foot of the class as far as food value is concerned," points out Miss Mary E. Loughhead of the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture. "In their raw state onions have a little Vitamin B1, riboflavin, Vitamin C, iron, and calcium. Young, green onions are fair sources of carotene, which the body can change into vitamin A."

Best mature onions are those that are dry, bright, clean, hard, and well-shaped—with no moistness at the stem end. Best green onions have fresh green tops—and medium sized, well-bleached necks for at least 2 or 3 inches up the root.

Store mature onions where it is cool, dry, and dark. Wash fresh green onions and put them to crisp in your vegetable box. Wrap onions loosely in wax paper to keep the onion odor from getting into the rest of the food.

Onions fit into the meal all along the line, with the obvious exception of dessert. Try them in soups, serve them with meat, mix them with other vegetables in all sorts of dishes. When onions are boiled, they should be cooked only until they are tender in a large amount of salted water.

Other Points Must Also Move Graves

Point Pleasant, W. Va. (AP)—An estimated 200 graves, many of them covered by tall grasses, and forgotten, will be moved at government expense to make way for the $55,000,000 TNT plant being constructed north of Point Pleasant.

The graves lie in seven old cemeteries scattered over the 8,000-acre tract. All will be moved to a single new burial ground on Lock Lane road, off West Virginia State route 62.

American planes can fly longer distances with heavier bomb loads . . .

than Axis planes..because of 100-Octane Aviation Gasoline pioneered by Esso

Ever since 1935, when 100-octane gasoline was first produced by Esso research, we have supplied it to the U. S. Air Forces, and have turned over to other refiners the working details they needed to make it cheaply and quickly. And greatly to America's gain, the improvements in plane and engine designs take full advantage of this super-fuel.
